

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A wireless communication device for communicating information from a bidirectional high speed data cable modem via an Ethernet connection using a first radio transceiver at a first location and communicating with a second radio transceiver at a customer's premises, wherein 5 the housing connects to a supporting strand which supports a coaxial cable carrying a RF spectrum signal and AC power as described herein.